| 1 | Fenil Desai | Dheeraj, working with you has been an absolute privilege! Your leadership during the backoffice migration to .NET MVC set a new standard for our team. I'll never forget how you simplified the MyAccount app and made it so adaptable for other brands—true innovation! You've always been the "Superman" of Bamboo, jumping in to help with any tech challenge, big or small. Your performance optimizations and cost-saving ideas in the Run team made a real difference. Thank you for being such a supportive teammate and an inspiration to us all. You'll be truly missed, and I wish you all the best in your next adventure! |

| | Shakti | Dheeraj, it's hard to imagine the team without your calm presence and sharp instincts. You've been more than just a technical powerhouse, you brought a sense of humility and steadiness, especially when things got chaotic and everyone else was running helter-skelter. I'll always remember those coffee breaks, especially at Strangers. Your grounded nature and thoughtful conversations. Wishing you all the best in what's next. Don't be strangers! 😊 |

Dheeraj, it's hard to believe you're leaving us—who's going to be our resident superhero now? You've been the Batman of Bamboo, always swooping in to save the day when things got messy. If there was a tech fire, you were already halfway through putting it out before anyone even smelled smoke.

Your work on the .NET MVC migration was so smooth, we're still wondering if you secretly hired a team of elves. And the MyAccount app? You didn't just simplify it—you made it so flexible, it could probably do yoga.

We'll miss your steady presence, your dry wit, and your uncanny ability to make even the most tangled code look like a walk in the park. Wishing you epic success in your next adventure—just don't forget us when you're famous!

And hey, don't be a stranger... unless you're literally at Strangers. Then definitely be one. 😊
